

The Intelligencer.

Intelligencer for the Summer.
Persons leaving the city may have the Intelligencer sent to them by mail, postage prepaid, for such time as they may desire, at the rate of five cents per week.
New: This money is paid for the time required must be all cash accompanying the order.

Capital Location Meetings.

The people of West Virginia will be addressed at the following times and places, and by the following speakers, in favor of Clarksburg:
Morgantown, Monongalia county, June 25th—By Geo. Nathan Goff, Jr., St. George, Tucker county, June 15th—By Hon. Benj. Wilson and Hon. E. M. Turner.
Glenville, Gilmer county, July 3d—By the same speakers.
Other announcements will be made from time to time.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

A Wheeling Valley correspondent of the Moundsville Reporter says that "there seems to be a growing disposition among young men, in this section, to visit, our creeks and bathe and fish on the Sabbath day, to the annoyance of the citizens."
It is quite probable that Rev. Mr. Monroey of Hancock county, will be called to Moundsville by the Presbyterian congregation down there.
The Moundsville Reporter, speaking of the crops, says that "never did nature in the region round about us seem more prolific. The grass and grain crops promise abundantly; corn and potatoes are backward, but look well, and apples will be plenty, and if they are equally so throughout the county we may look for better times after the harvest is gathered in."
The Harpersville fair will be held on the 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th of September next.
The Alumni of the West Liberty Normal School will hold its annual meeting on the 23d inst.

Three millions one hundred and fifty-seven thousand pounds of tobacco were produced in Monroe county in 1876. It is not that a strong argument in favor of a tobacco warehouse nearer home than Baltimore? We think it is, and our dealers are in favor of its location at Bellaire—Woodfield Spirit of Dem.

Mr. Edward Reid, living about two miles west of Bridgeport, has erected a fine new residence on his place.
We hear of but little wood chomping hands in Marshall county this season and what has been disposed of, at prices ranging from 30 to 40 cents.—Moundsville Reporter.

A new Methodist Church is in course of erection at Mountain View, about two miles and a half west of Bridgeport. The money was all subscribed by the farmers living in that vicinity, and Mr. James Woods donated the ground. The foundation of the church, which is to be 32x52 feet, was laid by Fred. Smith, of Bridgeport, Jas. Kerr & Co., of Martin's Ferry, will put up the frame work.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Fifty-two thunder storms are predicted for this summer.
The County Court has adjourned until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

A CALL for a mass meeting of citizens next Saturday in the interest of Clarksburg as the permanent seat of government has been issued, and is receiving a good many signatures.
The gross receipts of the festival, baby show and Opera house, for the benefit of the Children's Home, were about $1,100. About $700 will be realized above all expenses.

The contract of furnishing uniforms for the Mathews Guards has been let to Mr. John L. Rice. The uniforms are to be made of blue and gold trimmings, and will cost $20 each. Sixty of them are to be completed by July 16.

You need not tell it in Gath, nor publish it in the streets of Askelon, for it will soon be found out here, as it is well known in Wheeling, that the Standards have been again defeated by the Champions—Saturday by a score of 11 to 6.

The name of Blanche Foster was inadvertently omitted from the list of babies receiving prizes at the baby show. Miss Blanche received 28 votes as the prettiest and 20 as the healthiest child in Class B, and was presented with a silver cup.

The Weisel Musical Institute and Waverly Literary Society will exhort to Stenhouseville this evening on the steamer Ambler. The boat will leave the wharf promptly at 6 o'clock. It might be well to note here that only those receiving invitations will be permitted to accompany the excursionists.

SHOOTING APPRAY.—On Saturday evening Thomas McMaster and Albert Conner quarreled at a picnic in Balow's Grove, about a mile and a half west of Bridgeport, and McMaster pulled a revolver and shot Conner through the thigh. Conner was taken to his home in Bridgeport, where his wound was dressed by Dr. Fisher and Cook. McMaster fled, and has not been arrested.

TRANSFERS OF REAL ESTATE.—The following transfers of real estate were admitted to record in the office of the Clerk of the County Court, Saturday:
Deed made Sept. 7, 1868, by Geo. B. Caldwell, trustee, to Wm. B. and Miram Martin, for lots Nos. 37 and 38, in Sprigg's Row, South Wheeling, $171.25.
Deed made August 10, 1871, by Stephen Waterhouse and wife to Edward Gleason for lot No. 7 in square No. 43, South Wheeling, $200.

ELVEN TO SIX.—The Wheeling Standard base ball club will start on a Western tour July 15th. The Standard implies that the Alleghenies will be their umpire with their detests. When the Standard strikes the Wheeling club in the face, it strikes five Standards two, the proposed tour does not have an encouraging outlook, and the Standards had better borrow the Allegheny umpire and furnish their own saddle.—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

TRIED UP.—The steamer Star of the West has been "tried up" at this port by U. S. Commissioner Hannibal Forbes, upon a libel filed in the District Court of the United States by Thos. Morehead & Son, boiler makers, of this city. The Star of the West is owned by Mr. Shafter, lives at Belpre, Ohio. Capt. Thos. Day is her commander, and she has been running for some time past in the Wheeling and Bellaire trade. The claims filed against the boat aggregate some $600 or $800.

PERSONAL POINTS.—Mr. R. H. Pratt, formerly connected with the firm of A. W. Paul & Bro., has permanently located in New York city.

Capt. Thos. C. Prince, the gentlemanly conductor of the B. & O. Railroad, was in the city yesterday.
Kramer's brass band will leave on Wednesday for Bethany, to play at the college commencement. Messrs. Shallock & Co. will take them out in their wagon.

O. S. Long, Esq., of this city, will deliver an address at the Martin's Ferry Masonic reunion on St. John's Day.
The funeral of Mr. Casper Keim took place yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence. The remains were interred at Greenwood.

Mr. Kempie desires us to say to his friends and the public generally that he will not again indulge in defilement, either privately or publicly, for it places him in the position of the boys and the frog in the fable, he being the frog under such circumstances. It may be fun for the boys, but death to him.
Mr. Alex. Loring and nephew, Master Richard, both went to Europe on the 23d inst., from New York, in the steamer City of Richmond, of the Inman Line.
Mr. T. H. Hong is visiting friends in the East.

BELLAIRE LOCALS.—City Marshal Druggan last Friday evening formally opened the summer campaign against the canine species of our city. All our good citizens approve the Marshal's policy, and hope he will carry it out with force if it takes all summer.
Thomas Kane and his left bower, of Mollie Maguire notoriety, were promptly ejected by Marshal Druggan from the picnic at Cummins' Grove last Saturday, for trying to create a row.

The Original Bret Hartie Literary Society had a pleasant time at Wallace's orchard last Saturday. All kinds of amusements were indulged in, and the party, gay and merry, returned to the city about 7 o'clock in the evening.
Quite a number of our people will embrace the proffered opportunity of visiting Columbus, Ohio, and its institutions, next Wednesday, at a price of only $2 for a round trip ticket.

The numerous societies and orders, the Fire Department and Light Guards, are making preparations to treat our people to a real old styled Fourth of July celebration.
The new wheels were put on the street cars last Saturday, which greatly facilitates the travel and prevents the heretofore unnecessary sliding off the track. Superintendent F. Rodewig is exerting his utmost to make the road comfortable to travelers and remunerative to the city.

The German Sunday School children of Ritchietown have engaged Cummins' Grove, on this side of the river, for a picnic on the 30th day of this month.
Judging from public opinion at the present day, the leading attorney, Wm. H. Tallant, and J. J. Towell, Justice of the Peace, will have no barriers in obtaining the majority votes of their convention, and people, for the offices of Representative and County Treasurer, respectively, at the coming fall election.

A stock train, composed of about 25 cars of cattle, hogs and sheep, passed through here last Saturday, en route to Baltimore.
Our churches were generally all well attended by our people yesterday, and peace and quietness was the order of the day.
The alley west of Guernsey and between 33d and 34th streets is a place against which any human being is warned to visit. The stench arising from garbage, offal, stagnant water, putrid meats and dead animals are calculated to fulfill the prophecy of Isaiah, which says, "The streets of the city shall be full of carcasses, and no one shall bury them."

The Express arrived from Parkersburg Saturday evening and left for Pittsburgh yesterday morning.
The Andes is due from Cincinnati to-day.
Captain Wm. Day's new steamer was successfully launched at Ironton on Wednesday. She will be taken to Portsmouth to receive her machinery.

The hull of the new Monitor, built by Knox & Son, Harmar, Ohio, in 115 feet long, 20 feet beam, and 23 feet hold.
The steamer, Capt. A. Woodruff took her departure yesterday morning. It was the intention of Captain Rowley to tackle a wreck in the channel below McKee's Rock. That done he will proceed to the next, and so on until he reaches Wheeling. It said that with her machinery, coal, and provisions, she was well equipped for the purpose. The Woodruff makes quick work of it, and obstruction once she gets hold of it.—Com. Gazette.

[By Telegraph.]
CINCINNATI, June 17.—River fell 8 inches; rain 1 inch. Weather partly cloudy; dry; wind, w. to w. S. W.
EVANSVILLE, June 17.—Weather clear and hot; mercury 73 to 87°. River rising with 8.7 feet on gauge. Down—Hootspur, Grey Eagle, Bowling Green and Mollie Moore. Up—Smith and Parker, all with good trips.

MEMPHIS, June 17.—River rising. Arrived—Allen, Vicksburg; Belle, Memphis.
St. Louis, June 17.—Arrived—War Eagle, Keokuk; Dubuque, St. Paul. Departed—None. River fallen 6 inches. Weather cloudy and warm; indications of a storm.

VICKSBURG, July 17.—No boats up or down. Cloudy and warm. River rose 2 inches.
LOUISVILLE, June 17.—River falling, 7 to 11 inches in canal. Departed—Goff, Memphis; Rule, New Orleans; Mary Houston, Cincinnati; J. L. Blaydes in descending the falls this morning stranded in the big eddy. She has a small hole in her hull and was hard ground at a late hour to-night.

CAIRO, June 17.—Arrived—Ironides, Ohio; Grand Tower, Vicksburg; Joseph Walton, St. Louis; Thomas Sherlock, Cincinnati; Davis, St. Louis; St. Norbert, Ohio; Greyhound, Ohio; Vint Shinkle, Cincinnati; John B. Vaud, St. Louis; Arkansas Belle, Evansville. Departed—Idelwild, Evansville; Laura Davis, Pittsburgh; Grand Tower, St. Louis; Ironides, Ohio; Grand Tower, St. Louis; Greyhound, Memphis; Joseph Walton, St. Louis; Shinkle, Memphis; Sherlock, New Orleans; Maud, Vicksburg; Arkansas Belle, Evansville. River 30 feet 7 inches. Weather clear; mercury 88°.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.
MILWAUKEE, June 16.—Rindkopf & Janny, wheat brokers and speculators, failed to-day to meet their liabilities.
BLOOMINGTON, June 16.—The Home Bank, heretofore considered the strongest in this country, suspended to-day. The members claim that the embarrasment was only a temporary one, and solely due to the damaging and extravagant rumors that have been circulated among the members of the firm. The liabilities are $100,000.

BY TELEGRAPH.

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT.

TO THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER

GENERAL NEWS.

Silver Coin and Fractional Currency.

An Important Opinion from Attorney General Devens on the Subject.

Declaration of the Porte on the Commerce of Neutrals.

She Claims the Right of Search on the High Seas.

Fall of a Tenement House in New York City.

Narrow Escape of Over Two Hundred People.

A Terrible Calamity Averted by Prompt Action of the Police.

An Indian Uprising in Oregon—Murdering the Whites Indiscriminately.

WASHINGTON.

Opinion of the Attorney General on Silver Coin vs. Fractional Currency.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The following is the full text of the Attorney General's opinion on the subject of issuing silver coin in lieu of fractional currency out of circulation:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
WASHINGTON, June 16, 1877.
To Hon. John Sherman, Secretary of the Treasury:

Sir—By your letter of the 11th inst., I am informed that the amount of subsidiary silver coin, when added to the fractional currency which has been issued and not redeemed reaches practically to fifty millions of dollars. You inquire, in substance, whether under the 3d section of the Joint Resolutions of July 23, 1876, you are authorized to continue the issue of silver coin in the place of the fractional currency heretofore issued, which is shown to have been lost, or destroyed, I have the honor to reply that, strictly, I have no authority to do so. By the act of January 4, 1875, the Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to issue subsidiary coin in redemption of fractional currency until the amount of such fractional currency outstanding should be redeemed. By the act of April 17, 1876, he was authorized to issue silver coin in the redemption of an equal amount of fractional currency, whether the same was then in the Treasury waiting redemption or when it might thereafter be presented for redemption. This third section of the joint resolution of July 23, 1876, is as follows:

SECTION 3. That in addition to the amount of subsidiary coin authorized by law to be issued in the redemption of fractional currency, it shall be lawful to manufacture at the several mints, and issue through the Treasury and its several offices, such coin to an amount, not including the amount of subsidiary silver coin and of fractional currency outstanding, shall, in the aggregate, not exceed at any time $50,000,000.

It was in my opinion intended by this section that the money to be used in exchange should amount to $50,000,000, and when the term outstanding is used in reference to coin and fractional currency heretofore issued, it was contemplated that the Secretary should ascertain how much of that which had before been issued was still outstanding. It was a public knowledge that the fractional paper currency was to a considerable extent destroyed by the United States, this fact having been shown repeatedly in cases of those banks which have been at various times compelled to redeem the bills issued by them. In regard to an issue of fractional currency, it was also quite clear that from the number of bills in use such losses would be proportionally greater than in the issue of bills of larger amounts. While it is perhaps not a safe mode of construing such an act to refer to the debates of the Legislature, it is a public knowledge that the connection to observe that this fact in regard to the destruction of paper money by use was well known and understood, and was the subject of discussion in Congress in connection with the bill for which the resolution in question was afterwards adopted.

The House of Representatives, in the act of July 23, 1876, intended to authorize the issue of subsidiary coin authorized by law to be issued in redemption of fractional currency, it should be lawful to manufacture at the several mints, and issue through the Treasury in its several offices, to the further amount of twenty millions, and this bill was passed by the House.

In the discussion upon it was contended on one side that this would not more than replace the amount of fractional currency which had been worn out or destroyed and which would never be presented for redemption. Upon the other side, it was contended that a considerable portion of the fractional currency had been destroyed, it was contended that the amount was much less than twenty millions. The importance of this, in reference to the question under consideration, is the fact that the issue of additional paper currency is necessarily destroyed by use, and was the one which was fully considered by Congress in the United States debates—see Congressional Record, p. 3748, 3749, and 4750. The bill was passed by the House and was intended to be a permanent law, and it is a resolution, under consideration, was passed, and, therefore, the fact was clearly known and understood, that a considerable amount of fractional currency had been destroyed, and Congress used the phrase outstanding, instead of the phrase worn out, or destroyed, as an intent upon its part that the amount of $50,000,000 should be determined by the amount issued and not by that actually in existence. It must be noted that by the term outstanding was intended the currency which still continued to form a portion of the circulating medium and for which the Treasury might hereafter be liable. I am therefore of the opinion that the amount of fractional currency outstanding is to be determined by the record of the Department, which shows how much has been issued, but also by ascertaining how much of that issue has been lost or destroyed, so that it can never be presented for redemption. This, of course, presents a question of fact for your consideration. It is shown that as large an amount as $1,000,000 in fractional currency has been destroyed by fire, on being satisfied of the fact it would

Senator Conkling Sails.

New York, June 16.—Senator Conkling to-day sailed for Europe in the steamship Mosel. A number of distinguished Republicans accompanied the Senator down the bay. Passing steamers screamed a good-bye and dipped their flags.

The party proceeded down the bay, Wm. Orton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, made an appropriate little speech, as he said, to give a formal expression to the sentiments which had called the company together, by proposing the health of their friend and guest, and wishing him a good voyage and speed.

Mr. Conkling, who was received with cheers, responded in substance as follows: "Gentlemen—Had your purpose been to add to my regret at leaving these shores and to the pangs of this parting, you could hardly have chosen a more effective method. Your presence here, and your exceeding kindness in making it harder to say good-bye, even for a brief season. Nevertheless it gives me great gratification and will be treasured with grateful remembrance wherever I may wander in other lands and whatever times I may return. No matter what scenes surround me, or what my friends and friends I leave behind, my thoughts will constantly revisit the friends I leave behind. [Applause.] One of the most pleasant among the incidents which I anticipate in my journey abroad will be the opportunity to thank the English people for England's reception of me on my arrival. [Great Applause.] I see you as Americans in recent times has done so much to warm the hearts of the people of America as the warm, generous and spontaneous tributes paid by England to the hero and patriot, who saved our country from the clutches of a tyrant, the confidence and the affections of the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people. [Applause.] It is a consolation to know that the great English-speaking people of the British Isles understand that the American people have not forgotten the principles, measures, and men of the American Revolution, and in war due to take our part as the American people